

RAEME – THE Corps

On the 10th November 1948, King George VI, granted the title 'Royal' to a number of Corps of the Australian Regular Army (ARA), including Australian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers (AEME) – from then, AEME became the ROYAL CORPS of AUSTRALIAN ELECTRICAL and MECHANICAL ENGINEERS, abbreviated to RAEME.

The title was amended on the 7th December 1971 when the words 'Corps of' were dropped and became the ROYAL AUSTRALIAN ELECTRICAL AND MECHANICAL ENGINEERS (RAEME)

A SPECIAL NOTE FOR ALL US SVN OLD TIMERS: The above RAEME Badge is the NEW one adopted. As well, back on the 1 December 2006, the last independent RAEME Workshop was disbanded. RAEME soldiers continue in their role to provide support through attachment to other units in Tech Support Troops, Sections or Platoons.
